Goals of the Hackathon

- The focus is on education & teamwork
- Competition is used to frame the event & give a concrete goal to work toward
- Please freely share your experience and expertise, help others when you can
- What might success look like?
 - You've tackled a real-world data set, and done something interesting with it
 - You've learned something new about data analysis/methods
 - You've connected with others and grown from the experience

Rules

- All participants must abide by our code of conduct
<https://github.com/ocrug/hackathon-2021-04/blob/main/code-of-conduct.md>
- All work presented by the teams must be based upon work performed at the hackathon

Teams

- Teams will be ~5 members each, may vary depending on total number of participants
- Teams will be randomly assigned
- Each team will pick a team name
- Each team will have its own Slack channel for team communications
- Feel free to work when and how you'd like, but we encourage working together with your team in Zoom break-out rooms

Saturday Night Event

- Please join the main Zoom room at 7PM (PDT) for a short 1 hour social/data event.
- We'll mix-up participants into random groups across 4 rounds
 - Each round will be 10 minutes
 - First 5 minutes: participants will quickly (1 min) introduce themselves
 - Remaining 5 minutes: the team will work together on a quick data "challenge"
 - Team will earn points for the quickest correct submissions
- Prizes will be awarded to individuals with the most points

Presentations

- All teams will submit a 5 page PDF summary slide deck of their findings:
 - Slide 1: Title slide (include your team name!)
 - Slide 2: Concise summary with main findings
 - Slides 3 & 4: Supporting slides
 - Slides 5: Wrap-up/conclusions & acknowledgements
be sure to include reference to the data set
- Teams will choose one presenter and have 5 minutes to present their work
- All participants will vote on the award categories at the end
- Try to have a good idea about what you'll be presenting by Saturday night – presentations are due Sunday at 1PM!

Logistics

- Main activities (tutorials, Saturday night event, presentations) will take place in the main Zoom room
- Teams will work together in separate Zoom breakout rooms
- If you have any questions, please use visit the main Zoom room, or post to the Slack channel, #hackathon-2021-04
